Expanding Aphasia Support Globally: Lessons Learned From the Korean Aphasia Community

What

A free, online group for Korean-speaking people with aphasia and their families.

Why

It's hard to find aphasia services in Korean.

The group gives support, practice talking, and simple education.

Who

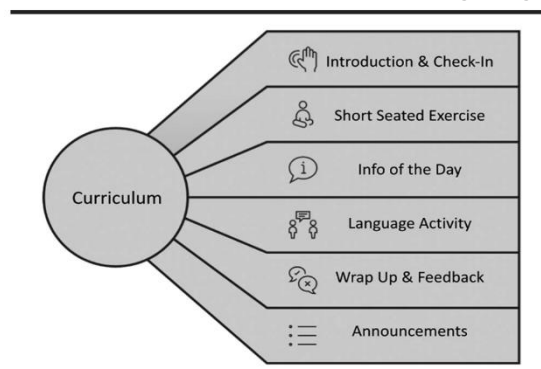

For Korean-speaking people with aphasia.

Group is run by bilingual clinicians, faculty, and students.

How it works

Zoom. About 90 minutes, once a month.

Plan: check-in → short exercise → information → language activity → wrap-up

Main message

Online, culturally tailored groups can help people with aphasia. This format can be copied for other languages and groups.
